INFORMANTS

As of 5/20/71, Philadelphia has 83 pending informant files which have been opened and assigned for the specific purpose of assisting in the investigation of MEDBURG. These informants have been carefully selected on the basis of their potential for involvement in MEDBURG. Thus, each one of these individuals is acquainted with suspects, resides in the community where suspects are neighbors, their youth and appearance permit them to travel in commune and hippie circles or because of their occupations they are in a unique position to obtain and furnish information of value. V

In addition to the above mentioned sources, Philadelphia continues to direct and target all previously established security and criminal informants in connection with the MEDBURG investigation. V

These sources are contacted on a regular basis for pertinent information and in some instances are targeted on a full-time basis to infiltrate the group of suspects, and actively seek out information which could result in the solution of this case. V

Philadelphia will continue to afford maximum effort to informant development, direction, and advancement in captioned matter. V

PH 52-7165

SUSPECTS

Separate files have been opened on all individuals considered to be suspects. In each individual suspect investigation, efforts are being made to obtain photographs, handwriting, and handprinting samples. A determination is made as to availability of fingerprints. Investigation is also directed to determine whereabouts of the suspect during the period 3/8 - 9/71, and his possible involvement in the planning and/or execution of the FBI Media Resident Agency burglary or in the distribution of surfaced stolen documents. J

Movements and activities of key Philadelphia prime suspects are being followed by surveillance and informants. J

A brief summary of activities, together with a physical description of those individuals no longer considered suspects as of 5/20/71, is included in details of this report. Subsequent reports will include the same information on other individuals in this category. J

Information re following eliminated suspects is not included in details of instant report due to the circumstances involved in each instant. J

FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION

Date: May 17, 1971

Employee on duty referred an anonymous male caller to SAC at 1:35 p.m., Sunday, May 16, 1971. Anonymous caller asked if we were interested in recovering the "Media files." He was advised that we were, and then questioned as to where they were located. Anonymous caller requested as to whether there was a "reward." He was advised that we would prefer to discuss that matter in person. He agreed to meet agents at the intersection at the southwest corner of 26th and Jefferson Streets, Philadelphia, Pa., in approximately 45 minutes. He stated he would be dressed in brown pants, green and gray striped shirt, blue rain jacket and a gray cap. J

He was asked to describe himself as to color, height, weight. He stated he was a black man, age 30, 5'11" and 180 pounds. He declined to give his name until he could see the agents in person. A definite appointment was made to meet him. J

2. Handwriting and Handprinting Examinations

Handwriting and/or handprinting of the following suspects has been submitted to the FBI Laboratory for comparison with the questioned handprinting in this case. These suspects and results of the comparisons are set out below:

PH 52-7165

Name: [REDACTED]

Lab Report: Dated 5/12/71,
No. D-710511150LC
K4809

Specimens Submitted: Handprinting and Signatures

Results: The limited handprinting on K4809 is not sufficiently comparable with the questioned handprinting on Q48 and Q49 in the MEDBURG case or the questioned material in the EASTCON case for meaningful comparisons to be made.

Name: [REDACTED]

Lab Report: Dated 5/12/71
No. D-71051116LC
K4790

Specimens Submitted: Handwriting and Handprinting

Results: It was determined that the questioned handprinting on specimens submitted in the MEDBURG and EASTCON cases was not prepared by the writer of the handprinting on K4790.

Name: [REDACTED]

Lab Report: Dated 5/11/71
No. D-710510097LC

3. Comparison of Documents and Other Break-In Cases with Questioned Documents

In an effort to determine whether there is any connection between the burglary of the Media Resident Agency and break-ins of draft boards and other FBI offices, material involved in other break-in investigations has been submitted to the Laboratory for examination and comparison with specimens in instant case.

PH 52-7165

Results of Laboratory examinations of material submitted in the following break-ins is set forth below: U

[redacted] ET AL
Burglary of [redacted]
[redacted]
9/5-6/70 U

b7C

On May 7, 1971, the Buffalo Office submitted to the Laboratory 24 items (K4765) obtained from the search of an automobile belonging to [redacted] a MEDBURG suspect, and 30 items (K4766) obtained from a search of the automobile of [redacted] also a MEDBURG suspect, during the course of investigation of the above break-in. U NY

Laboratory report of examination of these items is set forth as follows: U

The original typewriter impressions on the specimens, K4765 and K4766, were not prepared with the questioned typewriters used in the preparation of specimens previously submitted in this case. The copies which are part of K4765 and K4766 are not sufficiently legible for a detailed typewriter examination to be made. U

It was determined that the handprinting on specimens K4765 and K4766 was not prepared by the writer of the questioned handprinting on Q48 and Q49, previously submitted in this case. U

PH 52-7165

UNKNOWN SUBJECT;
Attempted Burglary of Garden City
Resident Agency, 1505 Kellum
Place, Garden City, N. Y.,
5/9-10/71 U

Results of examination by the FBI Laboratory of Items Q49 (torn sheet of paper bearing handwritten address [redacted] NY) and Q50 (sheet of paper bearing typewritten message beginning "We are citizens of these United States who feel...") in the Garden City case are set out below: U

b6

Due to the limited amount of handwriting and handprinting on Q49 and the possibility that this handwriting and handprinting may not represent the normal writing habits of the writer, comparisons with writings in EASTCON and MEDBURG did not result in a definite determination.

The typewriter impressions on Q50 most closely resemble the Laboratory standards for IBM Selectric Prestige Elite style of type and Smith-Corona Presidential Elite style of type. These styles of type are very similar in design and it was not possible to definitely determine which style of type was used in the preparation of Q50. U

It was determined that this style of type was not used on the questioned press releases, envelopes or in the preparation of the available known typewriter impressions previously submitted in MEDBURG. In addition, the typewriter impressions on Q50 were not prepared on any of the questioned or known typewriters in the EASTCON case.

PH 52-7165

Q50 contains the watermark "Hammermill Bond", which is registered to the Hammermill Paper Company, 1440 East Lake Road, Erie, Pa. 16512. No indented writing of value was noted on Q50.

[redacted]
[redacted] was considered a suspect in the Media Resident Agency burglary for the following reason: U

By letter dated March 16, 1970, [redacted]
[redacted] sent his Selective Service Registration Certificate to President Nixon in protest to the Vietnam War. He left Cornell University to take a five year leave of absence to work for peace. Information was received that he allegedly made plans to destroy Selective Service records. In March, 1971, he was stopped by Police Officers in Ithaca, New York during the early morning hours in the vicinity of Babcock Hall which houses the Selective Service Board. U

On April 15, 1971, subject was interviewed by Special Agents of the FBI at Ithaca, New York, and he advised he was at Cornell University during the period of March 8 - 9, 1971, and denied ever being in Philadelphia. The interviewing agents noted [redacted] exhibited unstable behavior and his comments during the interview drifted from topic to topic. U

On April 9, 1971, subject's father advised, to his knowledge, subject was at Cornell University on March 8-9, 1971, and doubted if subject would ever break into any establishment. Subject has been afforded psychiatric treatment. Subject's father has been extremely cooperative in furnishing information to police officers regarding his son. U

There is no evidence to indicate [redacted] was involved in the planning and/or execution of the FBI Media Resident Agency burglary or in the distribution of surfaced stolen documents. U

BURGLARY OF FBI RESIDENT AGENCY MEDIA, PENNSYLVANIA, MARCH 8, 1971

MEDBURG

This is in further reference to my letter of May 21, 1971, which deals with the execution of a search warrant authorized by the United States Attorney's office in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and issued by United States Magistrate Edward W. Furia on May 16, 1971.

This warrant, which authorized the search of the premises of [redacted] Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, was based on information furnished in a signed statement by one [redacted] to Special Agents of our Philadelphia Office on May 16, 1971, to the effect he had observed stacks of documents making reference to the FBI at that apartment. Further, he had seen a communication from the Citizens Commission to Investigate the FBI.

FBI Agents, after twice identifying themselves and announcing their intention, forcibly entered the apartment, which was unoccupied, at 5:50 p. m., May 16, 1971, and seized a quantity of documents which were copies of those stolen from the FBI Resident Agency at Media, Pennsylvania, on March 8, 1971. As indicated in my letter of May 21, 1971, copies of these seized documents have previously been forwarded the Department.

One [redacted] at 6:55 p. m. appeared at the apartment, identifying herself as its occupant. She was shown a copy of the search warrant and, upon conclusion of the search at 8:20 p. m., was furnished copy of the warrant and a copy of an inventory of items removed from the apartment.

In this regard, there is attached a copy of a communication from [redacted] Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, dated [redacted]

A-20 What Is the FBI Up To?

With due deliberation and with considerate regard for the Attorney General's objections, this newspaper yesterday published the substance of some FBI records—stolen by unknown persons from the FBI's office in Media, Pa. and sent to The Washington Post anonymously by mail. The Attorney General, naturally, would have preferred no account at all of the records and, indeed, no mention of the theft. Because he asserted that "these records include information which would disclose the identity of confidential investigative sources and information relating to the national defense," this newspaper carefully refrained from any facsimile reproduction of the documents sent to it and from any disclosure of the various FBI codes on the records, including identification numbers and names of agents and of persons under surveillance. We reported the substance of the records, however, because we were convinced that it served the public interest to do so.

The records afford a glimpse, not often granted to the general public or even to committees of Congress, of some of the ways in which the FBI works and of some part of its concept of internal security. They indicate that the bureau focused a good deal of attention on college campuses and particularly on black student groups which, according to a memorandum issued by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover "pose a definite threat to the nation's stability and security" and that on one college campus in the Philadelphia area the bureau enlisted the services of the local police chief, the local postmaster, a campus security officer and a college switchboard operator to maintain surveillance on a professor regarded as a "radical." Other documents indicated that students were used, sometimes on a paid basis, as informers.

This lifting of a corner of the curtain on FBI activity in the name of internal security seems to us extremely disquieting. Granted that it by no means presents a complete picture, it nevertheless suggests strongly that an appropriate committee of the United States Congress ought to look much more thoroughly at what the bureau is doing. Disorder on college campuses undoubtedly presents a problem to the colleges concerned and perhaps to the communities where they are situated as well. But it does not rise to the level of a threat to the internal security of the United States.

Moreover, the intrusion of undercover operatives and student informers into the life of an institution which has the interchange of ideas and the conflict of opinion as its very raison d'être introduces a disruptive element more deadly than disorder. The FBI has never shown much sensitivity to the poisonous effect which its surveillance, and especially its reliance on faceless informers, has upon the democratic process and upon the practice of free speech. But it must be self-evident that discussion and controversy respecting governmental policies and programs are bound to be inhibited if it is known that Big Brother, under disguise, is listening to them and reporting them.

The FBI is not only insensitive on this score; it is shown by these records to be callous and, indeed, deliberately corrupting. One of the documents encourages agents to step up interviews with dissenters "for plenty of reasons, chief of which are it will enhance the paranoia endemic in these circles and will further serve to get the point across there is an FBI agent behind every mailbox. In addition, some will be overcome by the overwhelming personalities of the contacting agent and volunteer to tell all—perhaps on a continuing basis."

That is a concept of internal security appropriate, perhaps, for the secret police of the Soviet Union but wholly inconsonant with the idea of a Federal Bureau of Investigation in the United States. A government of snoopers in a nation of informers was hardly the vision in the minds of those who established the American Republic.

We believe the American public needs to know what the FBI is doing. We believe the American public needs to think long and hard about whether internal security rests essentially upon official surveillance and the suppression of dissent or upon the traditional freedom of every citizen to speak his mind on any subject, whether others consider what he says wise or foolish, patriotic or subversive, conservative or radical. That is why we published the substance of the stolen FBI records.

Thieves Got Over 1,000 FBI Papers

By Betty Medsger
and Ken W. Clawson
Washington Post Staff Writer

The Justice Department disclosed last night that more than 1,000 documents were stolen in a March 8 burglary of the FBI office in Media, Pa.

Copies of 14 of the stolen documents were mailed anonymously to several places in the past few days. Some of the contents of the documents were published in The Washington Post yesterday.

The documents described FBI surveillance of campus and black activist organizations at one college campus, utilizing local police, letter carriers and campus employees.

Justice officials charged last night that the 14 documents mailed to two members of Congress and to newspapers were carefully selected from among the 1,000 to create an impression of unwarranted or illegal methods used by the FBI. It was presumed that the selection of the documents and their mailing was done by those who stole the records.

"Actually," one Justice official said, "a full examination of the stolen documents reveals the FBI showed restraint rather than overzealousness. They do excellent police work."

Attorney General John N. Mitchell Tuesday night urged publications that had received copies of the 14 documents to temporarily refrain from publishing them on grounds that "disclosure of this information could endanger the lives or cause other serious harm to persons engaged in investigative activities on behalf of the United States."

The Washington Post published information about incidents described in the FBI reports, but no names contained in the memos were used.

Justice Department officials who spent all day yesterday compiling and analyzing copies of most of the stolen documents said the Media, Pa., files contained more than 1,000 reports that cover "every conceivable" category of FBI investigations.

They said an analysis of the files revealed that the burglars, who call themselves the Citizens' Commission to Investigate the FBI, intended to mislead a senator, a congressman and at least three newspapers by sending them only reports that would appear to discredit the FBI.

For example, one of the documents made public by the group, involved FBI surveillance of a Philadelphia-area college professor whom agents suspected of harboring one or more fugitives.

The memo shows how the FBI enlisted the local police chief, a neighbor, the postmaster, the security officer at the college and even the campus switchboard operator to help them keep track of the professor. The memo also contains much information on the professor's political views, his "hippie" associates and one appraisal that the professor is a "radical."

With access to only that memo, Justice officials contended last night, it appears the professor was being watched mainly because of his politics. The officials said this was not so.

The memo was actually part of a packet of reports on the September, 1970, slaying of a Boston policeman during a bank holdup, they said.

The whole packet was stolen, Justice officials said, but the thieves did not make public other memos that showed the FBI had evidence two of the fugitives—Katherine Power, 21, of Denver, and Susan E. Saxe, 20, of Albany, N.Y.—might try to make contact with the professor.

Both women were placed on the FBI's "Most Wanted" list in October, 1970. The FBI memo on the investigation of the professor was dated Nov. 13, 1970.

Katherine Power and Susan Saxe were described as part of a "radical, revolutionary" campus group in the Boston area. They have not been apprehended.

Justice officials said access to all the memos pertaining to the investigation showed the FBI was conducting "a straight criminal investigation." One official said, "They were doing what any policeman would do with information these fugitives might come to that area."

Some of the documents, however, seemed to indicate regular surveillance of certain groups, such as the Black Panthers and the Black Economic Development Conference.

One of the memos was a directive from J. Edgar Hoover directing that black student groups "organized to project the demands of black students" be added to those under regular surveillance. That memo was dated Nov. 4, 1970, and there is no indication he later countermanded the order.

Justice officials would not comment on another memo that described FBI tactics on dissenters or a new policy that provides for hiring student informers aged 18 to 21.

In a memo entitled "New Left Notes—Philadelphia," agents were advised to get "more interviews with these subjects and hangers-on . . . for plenty of reasons, chief of which are it will enhance the paranoia endemic in these circles and will further serve to get the point across there is an FBI agent behind every mailbox."

The burglary in which the 1,000 documents were stolen occurred in the resident agent's office in Media, Pa. According to local police, the burglars forced open an unused door by pushing aside a file cabinet that normally blocked the door.

They jimmied open the locked file cabinets and ransacked the room, police said. Damage was minimal. As a result of the burglary, described yesterday by Justice officials as a "new peacenik tactic," the FBI has bolstered security of all its field offices.

It was the second break-in at an FBI office. On Sept. 6, 1970, the Rochester, N.Y., office was burglarized by eight anti-war activists, three of them from Philadelphia.

All eight are now serving 12- to 18-month prison terms.

No FBI records were stolen in that raid.

"The Washington Post" issue of April 6, 1971, attached, carried an article captioned FBI Secretly Prods Colleges on New Left. Therein mention was made of a document that discussed providing educators with "New Left" reading material. The Director commented "When was this issued?" "Let me see a copy." Mention was also made to one page of a document cautioning against violent actions by informants. The Director commented "Let me see this document." Mention was also made to investigations being opened or reopened on black student organizations. The Director commented "Let me see this."

Concerning the New Left "document," the Chicago Office has furnished a new packet of compromised documents which were obtained from a "Los Angeles Times" representative at Chicago, Illinois.

This packet contains a Philadelphia routing slip dated 8/9/68, copy attached, which is the "document" referred to in "The Washington Post." This routing slip refers to instructions contained in Bureau letter dated 7/29/68, copy attached. SAC Jamieson, Philadelphia, advised that the official Bureau communication was not compromised and is in file in Philadelphia. The routing slip, which was stolen, apparently was prepared in order to transmit copies of reprints of the article to be distributed in accordance with Bureau instructions in the attached airtel. The routing slip was not a document requiring charge out and, therefore, was not known to have been stolen prior to this disclosure.

Concerning the cautioning of informants against violent actions, this again refers to internal memorandum captioned "New Left Notes - Philadelphia" dated 9/16/70, attached, subject of previous memoranda.
BLACK STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS:

Attached is copy of Philadelphia airtel to the Director, FBI, 12/2/70, captioned "Black Student Groups on College Campuses, RM." This document contains in paragraph three, page one, substantially the exact quote as contained in "The Washington Post" article. The only discrepancy between the attachment and the article in "The Washington Post" is the fact the article mentioned opening or reopening investigations on black student organizations on 10 campuses. The actual airtel listed organizations on 13 campuses on which investigations were to be opened or reopened. Ten of the organizations are set forth on page two of the attached airtel which suggests that page three was not available to the authors of "The Washington Post" article..)

We were previously aware of the theft of the attached airtel dated 12/2/70. It was in answer to a Bureau airtel dated 11/4/70, same caption, which instructed the field to furnish a list of these black student organizations which were to be the subjects of discreet preliminary inquiries to determine whether the activities of these groups, their leaders and key activists were of a black extremist nature and warranted further attention..

OBSERVATIONS:

Damage assessment and appropriate memoranda to the Attorney General are being prepared concerning the New Left "document" and other newly disclosed compromised documents obtained in Chicago. The 12/2/70 document concerning investigation of black student groups has already been assessed to damage and appropriate memorandum has been furnished to the Attorney General. . .

ACTION:

None. For the Director's information.

FBI Secretly Prods Colleges on New Left

A-1 By Betty Medsger and Ken W. Clawson
Washington Post Staff Writers

If college educators "have shown reluctance to take decisive action against the 'New Left,'" the FBI may anonymously send them reprints of articles on New Left campus thinking.

If educators and administrators are "established sources" of the FBI, they know the reprints of these critical analyses are coming from the Bureau.

That FBI technique is revealed in one of 11 copies of FBI documents received yesterday by The Washington Post from the Citizens' Commission to Investigate the FBI.

The group, through anonymous mailings to news reporters and congressmen, has taken responsibility for the March 8 raid on the FBI's office in Media, Pa.

The documents received yesterday again appeared to be selective and incomplete. The Justice Department charged after the first batch of documents was made public two weeks ago that the group had selected certain documents in order to create misconceptions about investigations carried on by the FBI.

Those documents received yesterday by the Post and other newspapers bring to 25 the total number made public by the group. Justice Department sources have said that more than 1,000 documents were stolen in the raid.

The document that discusses providing educators with "New Left" reading materials says, "Positive results or comments by recipients should be furnished to the Bureau. Let me know of disposition, and any results."

When was this issued?
Let me see a copy. H

At the bottom of the document, in handwriting, is a note to the Media agent: "Can you handle Swarthmore, Haverford, Villanova."

Presidents at all three suburban Philadelphia colleges said yesterday that they did not consider themselves "established sources" of the FBI and were not aware of receiving such materials either directly or anonymously.

Other documents among the 11 received by The Washington Post in an envelope mailed in Harrisburg, Pa., include:

- A "cool it" recommendation to informants not to assault policemen or be the ones in the group to carry guns.

- An attempt to create an extensive network of informants throughout the black neighborhoods of Philadelphia. One reference suggests that students about to enter college be sought as informants.

- An elderly Augustinian telling the FBI he suspects that one of the priests in his religious order may have been involved in the March 1 bombing of the Capitol.

actions by informants says in part:

"Again on the subject of informants, there have been a few instances where security informants in the New Left got carried away during a demonstration, assaulted police, etc. The key word in informants, according to Bureau supervision, is 'control'.

"They define this to mean that while our informants should be privy to everything going on and should rise to maximum level of their ability in the New Left Movement, they should not become the person who carries the gun, throws the bomb, does the robbery or by some specific violative, overt act becomes a deeply involved participant. This is the judgment area and any actions which seem to border on it should be discussed."

The same memo states that there are about 30 fugitive cases under investigation where the basic violation grew out of New Left activity."

A series of documents written in 1968 describes efforts to build a large network of informants in black areas of the city. A February 26, 1968 memo states: "It is essential that this office develop a large number of additional racial informants at this time and that we continue to add and develop racial informants and exploit their potential during the months ahead."

"Large numbers of prospects" as future informants, said one document, could be found among "men honorably discharged from the armed services, members of veterans organizations and the like."

"Racial intelligence" also might be gathered, says one document, from friends, relatives and acquaintances of Bureau employees."

"Other sources which should be kept in mind," the document continues, "are employees and owners of businesses in ghetto areas which might include taverns, liquor stores, drug stores, pawn shops, gun shops, barber shops, janitors of apartment buildings, etc."

"The Bureau also suggests contacts with persons who frequent ghetto areas on a regular basis such as taxi drivers, salesmen and distributors of newspapers, food and beverages. Installment collectors might also be considered in this regard."

Another 1968 document entitled "Racial Informants" concludes by asking agents to ascertain "among all Negro informants, including ghetto informants," which ones are planning to enter college. Such informants, says the document, could then "infiltrate black power groups on campuses."

The same document lists 12 individuals "active in the Negro militant movement," six places "considered logical meeting areas where ghetto informants might be sent," and the names of nine bars, "furnished by the Philadelphia Police Department as being places where militant Negroes have been known to congregate."

Three bookstores also were listed and described as places where "extremist literature" is sold.

One of the places listed as a possible meeting spot to gather information on black extremists is the Episcopal Church of the Advocate in North Philadelphia. The name of the church's pastor, the Rev. Paul Washington, appears in the FBI document. The church was the site for the Third National Black Power Conference held in the fall of 1968.

Others possible meeting places — Black House, CORE, SCLC, the Black Coalition, the Ghetto Training Center — also are listed in the document, but no names of persons in charge are given.

Father Washington serves on Philadelphia's Human Relations Commission and was under consideration recently for nomination as suffragan bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Washington.

In an interview yesterday, Father Washington said, "This doesn't make a difference. It's just that now we have a document that proves what we've suspected all along."

Announcement of investigations being "opened or reopened" on black student organizations on 10 campuses is made in a Dec. 2, 1970, memo to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

The purpose of the investigations, according to the memo, is to "determine the size, aims, purposes, activities, leadership, key activists and extremist interests or influence in these groups."

The elderly Augustinian, who called the FBI about the bombing of the U.S. Capitol, was Brother Patrick, 70, a gardener and keeper of the sacristy of the Augustinian monastery in Villanova, Pa. He called the FBI March 2 and told them he might have information pertinent to the bombing.

Brother Patrick said yesterday that he had no basis for his suspicions except that one of the priests, in his religious order, the Rev. Thomas Casey, had signed out a "monastery car" for "the entire weekend prior to the bombing."

The priest, a theology professor at Villanova, was described to the FBI by Brother Patrick as "a sympathizer with the Berrigans in their recent court trial."

Brother Patrick, in a telephone interview yesterday, said the FBI later informed him that his information was not significant.

"I just wanted to be helpful," said Brother Patrick. "I just wanted to stop this thing."

Brother Patrick recalled that a couple years ago, when the Rev. Philip Berrigan, now indicted for conspiring to blow up tunnels under federal buildings and to kidnap presidential assistant, Henry Kissinger, spoke on the Villanova campus, he picketed the address.

"I had a big sign I carried around while he spoke," said Brother Patrick. On the sign were the words "Twenty Years Jail for a Traitor."

Father Casey said yesterday that he thought Brother Patrick's reporting him to the FBI is indicative of the "paranoia that is part of the national psyche now."

Sad me see this. H

~~As for his whereabouts that~~ weekend, Father Casey said he was at the seashore, near Avolon, N.J. with another priest.

The priest said he first heard that Brother Patrick had called the FBI about him last Saturday when he received a call from a man who did not identify himself except to say he was a member of the Citizens' Commission to Investigate the FBI.

The document was read to Father Casey and he was asked if he would mind if the Citizens' Commission distributed the document. He said he would not object. "I feel very embarrassed for Brother

Patrick," Father Casey said yesterday.

The creation of a "New Left" desk was described in a Sept. 16, 1970 document.

That document concludes by noting:

"It is not contemplated that such organizations as the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, SANE, AFSC (American Friends Service Committee), etc., which have long been in existence and are now attempting to polarize themselves toward revolting youth will be considered within the investigative purview of 'New Left.'"

"To include such organizations would defeat the purpose of setting up a flexible activist group designed to deal with violent and terror-istic minded young anarchists."

Enclosed herewith for each recipient office are 15 copies of a reproduction of an article appearing in "Barron's" magazine entitled "Campus or Battleground? Columbia is a Warning to All American Universities."

This is a particularly hard-hitting indictment of the Columbia University riots and the reaction of University officials thereto.

It is the Bureau's belief that this article, written by an on-campus eyewitness, can be used to advantage by the Bureau to inform other educators and administrators of the true nature of the New Left and its attack upon our educational institutions.

You should furnish a copy of this article to educators and administrators in your division who are established sources. Where appropriate, you may also want to mail it anonymously to those college educators and administrators who have shown a reluctance to take decisive action against the New Left.

Any positive results obtained from the above or any comments made by recipients should be furnished the Bureau under the above caption.

NOTE:

The above referred article was written by Robert Hessen, an instructor at Columbia University's Graduate School of Business, and was printed in the 5/20/68 issue of "Barron's" magazine. It is a particularly critical analysis of Columbia University's handling of the riot. Information contained in this article should be brought to the attention of college officials throughout the country. Through it other universities may profit by taking a firmer stand from the outset during New Left disturbances. J

Campus or Battleground?

Columbia Is a Warning to All American Universities

A LARGER-than-life portrait of Karl Marx dominated the entrance of a classroom building; a red flag flew from its rooftop. Chains barred the doors of other buildings, and chanting mobs roamed across the campus. The scene might have been the University of Havana or Peking. It wasn't. It took place just a few express stops from Wall Street, at Columbia University, where, from April 23-30, student leftists seized and occupied five university buildings.

The siege tactics which disrupted Columbia and brought its normal activities to a halt represent the latest assault by a revolutionary movement which aims to seize first the universities and then the industries of America. The rebels are members of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), a nationwide organization with chapters on over 250 campuses (Barron's, November 15, 1965, and March 11, 1968).

Originally, when SDS began as an outgrowth of the socialist League for Industrial Democracy, it repudiated communism as an authoritarian system and excluded communists from its membership. However, in 1964-65, SDS sought to broaden its power base by forming a united front with communist youth groups. Although SDS continued to describe its objectives in such murky phrases as "participatory democracy," the real tenor of its philosophy can best be seen in its intellectual heroes, Marx and Mao; in its action hero, Che Guevara; and in its slogans scrawled across the embat-

They admit that their campaign was a failure, which they ascribe to student and faculty apathy, and to the administration's refusal to hear and to heed their policy recommendations.

SDS rebels then resorted to their ultimate political weapon: the initiation of physical force, believing that they had a moral right to do so because they were "acting in a good cause." In the past, they had released many trial balloons to test this technique: they had obstructed N.R.O.T.C. graduation ceremonies; they had staged sit-ins in the offices of university administrators; and they had prevented recruiters for business firms and the C.I.A. from interviewing on campus. In each case, the consequence had been a polite rap on the knuckles, a verbal reprimand devoid of significant penalties such as expulsion or criminal prosecution.

On April 23, after trying to block construction at the gym site, SDS demonstrators and their militant Negro allies, members of the Student Afro-American Society, returned to campus. At the urging of their leaders, they marched on Hamilton Hall, the main classroom building of Columbia College. They were determined to barricade themselves in until the university met their demands. An unexpected fissure occurred within the ranks of the rebels who claimed to be united in their opposition to racism: the Negro militants ordered the whites to get out, and SDS complied. SDS then proceeded to capture a base of

This lead article from the May 20 issue of BARRON'S, was written by Robert Hessen, a young instructor in Columbia University's Graduate School of Business, and candidate for a doctorate in the Department of History.

It is being reprinted in the form of an advertisement by Dow Jones & Company, publishers of Barron's, in the interests of the wide audience the subject commands.

The faculty mediators labored under the belief that the rebels would be willing to negotiate for a peaceful solution to the mounting crisis. What they discovered, however, was that every concession made by the administration only produced escalated rebel demands. SDS' ultimate demand was that they be granted total amnesty as a pre-condition for negotiation.

It grew increasingly obvious that the rebels would not withdraw from the buildings until forced out by the police. They wanted blood to be shed, so that they could raise the cry of "police brutality," acquire the aura of martyrdom, and thereby win the majority of students and faculty to their side. Regrettably, President Kirk played right into their hands, by waiting until the sixth day of siege before calling in the police. The only other alternative open to him at that point would have been total capitulation, a final act of ends. As befits socialists, they regard the university as just another natural resource awaiting their expropriation.

But the long-range objective of SDS is even more sinister. As a sympathetic article in The New Republic (May 11, 1968) states: "The point of the game was power. And in the broadest sense, to the most radical members of the SDS Steering Committee, Columbia itself was not the issue. It was revolution, and if it could be shown that a great university could literally be taken over in a matter of days by a well-organized group of students, then no university was secure. Everywhere the purpose was to destroy institutions of the American Establishment, in the hope that out of the chaos a better America would emerge."

The rebels have no patience for any slow process of change. They are tired of "just talk"—they want "action only in the narrow sense that they did not shed blood. But force was inextricably involved in every act that they perpetrated. They held the Associate Dean as hostage against his will—that was force. They barricaded faculty and students from their offices and classrooms—that was force. They seized property which was not rightfully theirs and refused to release it until their demands were met—that was force. Each of these is punished as an act of force under the civil laws of our society. They are the crimes known as false imprisonment, criminal trespass and extortion.

If these acts were perpetrated by a lone individual, their criminal character would be obvious. If a single felon had held the dean hostage, or seized the office of President Kirk, rifled his desk and copied his files, no one would have confused him with an idealistic, "committed" crusader. On an in-whether the initials of the aggressors are KKK or SDS.

3) The rebels claim they were justified in using force because the administration had refused to give them a hearing on their demands for change. A university, like a well-run business, should be interested in knowing whether it is satisfying its customers. If it provides students with incompetent faculty, or poor laboratories or libraries, or supports political policies which they oppose, it is in the university's self-interest to maintain open channels of communication so that grievances can be expressed and remedial actions considered. Students who are dissatisfied with any aspect of a university's policies have a right to peacefully protest and petition, and even, in extreme situations, to boycott classes or organize a student strike. But they have no right to compel anyone to listen to their demands, nor a right to force other people to go on strike with them by prohibiting access to classes or by creating a general climate of terror to intimidate those who would oppose them.

4) The rebels claim that since force is justified when peaceful tactics fail, they should be granted full amnesty. The single best answer to this argument is

7) Rebels should not be criminally prosecuted. After all, they are students, not criminals. One need only remember that it was Nazi students who set fire to university libraries and terrorized professors. Being a student does not grant one an exemption from the laws which prohibit attacks on human life and property. The rebels acted like criminals and should be punished as such.

8) It is impractical to suspend or expel the student rebels because there are so many of them. This amounts to saying that if a sufficiently large mob breaks the law or violates individual right, it will be immune from punishment. If this principle is accepted, then every law-breaker will be safe from prosecution if he can find enough members for his gang. This will provide the leader with an absolutely irresistible recruitment device, and invite the outbreak of a reign of terror.

9) Admittedly the rebels violated property rights, but calling in the police could result in injury or loss of life, which is more important than loss of property. This argument amounts to saying that the lives of aggressors are more important than the property of victims. In action, this would mean that the police should not restrain slogans scrawled across the embattled Columbia campus—"Lenin won, Castro won, and we will win, too!"

SDS' hard-core membership at Columbia is fewer than 200 out of 17,300 students. But after it seized campus buildings, barred faculty and students from their offices and classrooms, and held a dean as hostage, its ranks were swelled by several hundred sympathizers, including many outsiders. SDS launched its assault on Columbia after failing peacefully to attain two of its political objectives on campus:

1) The severing of Columbia's connection with the Institute for Defense Analyses, a government-sponsored consortium which performs research and analysis relating to national defense and domestic riot control. SDS complained that Columbia's affiliation was aiding America's "imperialist aggression" in Vietnam, while at home I.D.A.'s studies in riot control were designed to suppress demonstrations by anti-war groups.

2) A halt to the construction of a new gymnasium in Morningside Park, which adjoins Harlem, on land leased to Columbia by the City of New York.

SDS claimed that Columbia was guilty of "institutional racism," that the university was poaching upon the territory of the adjacent Negro community, and that the separate entrance for the part of the gym set aside for use by the neighborhood children constituted "Gym Crow."

In fact, the Columbia gymnasium had been warmly endorsed by over 40 Harlem community groups when it was announced eight years ago. It would occupy only two of the 30 acres in Morningside Park. Its presence would create an atmosphere of safety in an area which is now the territory of muggers and addicts. Separate entrances would be necessary because Columbia students would enter from the Heights on which the university is located, while Harlem residents would more conveniently reach the gym through the park which lies some 200 feet below. The issue is not one of bigotry but of geography.

SDS spokesmen claimed, truthfully, that they had sought to arouse the Columbia community into opposing the gym and the I.D.A. links.

then proceeded to capture a base of operation of its own. The rebels first seized the administrative offices of President Grayson Kirk in Low Library, and later three more classroom buildings.

Most students reacted with bewilderment and outrage. They demanded to know why the campus police had not been called in, and why the rebels were allowed to receive reinforcements of manpower and food. They witnessed caravans of litter-bearers marching across campus with cartons of supplies, as if their destination were a country picnic. Many students also wondered why the administration had not ordered the cutting off of electricity, water and telephones inside the buildings held by the rebels, since it was known that they were making Xerox copies of President Kirk's letter files and formulating strategy with outside allies by phone.

The administration's failure to take prompt action evidently sprang from a number of motives: fear of bad publicity; uncertainty about the morality of using the police to uphold law and order; reluctance to make a decision which might prove unpopular with some of the faculty, students or alumni; anxiety that members of the Harlem community might march on Columbia if police were used to clear the buildings; and the delusion that if they took no punitive action, the rebels would recognize them as men of good will. An SDS leader later admitted that if President Kirk had responded within the first hour, or even the first day, by sending in the university's own security police, the rebels would have "folded like a house of cards." By its inaction, the administration gave the rebels time to organize their resistance, bolster their morale and mobilize sympathizers and supplies from the outside.

Members of the senior faculty attempted to mediate between the administration and the rebels. But their efforts were futile, since they were faced with an impossible assignment: to devise a peace formula ambiguous enough to satisfy both sides—which meant that the terms of settlement had to both promise and refuse amnesty for the rebels.

of change, they are tired of "just talk"—they want "action now." They will tolerate no opposition. They are indifferent to the fact that their tactics will destroy Columbia University by driving out the best minds, just as Nazi terror tactics drove the Jewish intellectuals out of the universities of Germany. But there is a crucial difference now. While men like Einstein could escape to England or America during the Thirties, SDS will try to close all avenues of escape. The use of intimidation and force will spread until there will be no sanctuary for men of reason within the academic world, or, ultimately, within the nation. One need only consider the fate of conservatives and liberals alike in countries which have been overrun by SDS' intellectual mentors: Mao's China and Castro's Cuba.

The aftermath of calling in the police was an upsurge of sympathy for the rebels. Their allies on campus called for a general strike by students and faculty to protest the use of police and to demand the ouster of President Kirk for having called them in. One mark of the effectiveness of this strike is that Columbia College, the undergraduate division of the university, voted to end all classes for the rest of the semester, which was scheduled to run another month. The strikers also won support from those who disapproved of both the tactics and objectives of SDS, but who wished to take advantage of the strike to bring about what is cryptically described as "restructuring of the university."

Even those most sympathetic to SDS, however, do not deny that the issues of I.D.A. and the gym were merely pretexts to justify the resort to force. SDS' short-range objective is to achieve "student power," which means total control over the university. They seek student veto power over appointment and tenure of faculty, admission of new students, courses offered by the university, degree requirements and the disposition of university funds. They propose to "radicalize the faculty," which means to purge it of conservatives and of law-and-order liberals who oppose the initiation of force to achieve political change, they are tired of "just talk"—they want "action now." They will tolerate no opposition. They are indifferent to the fact that their tactics will destroy Columbia University by driving out the best minds, just as Nazi terror tactics drove the Jewish intellectuals out of the universities of Germany. But there is a crucial difference now. While men like Einstein could escape to England or America during the Thirties, SDS will try to close all avenues of escape. The use of intimidation and force will spread until there will be no sanctuary for men of reason within the academic world, or, ultimately, within the nation. One need only consider the fate of conservatives and liberals alike in countries which have been overrun by SDS' intellectual mentors: Mao's China and Castro's Cuba.

Since SDS tactics have succeeded in crippling a great university, the next targets can be City Hall, the State Capitol, or even the White House. If this prediction seems alarmist, consider the fact that SDS sympathizers known as "Yippies" already have announced plans to intimidate and disrupt the Democratic National Convention in Chicago this summer, in order to extract concessions on platform and candidates.

Whatever the final outcome of the Columbia strike, one thing is certain: the methods used at Columbia will be embraced by other student leftists on campuses throughout the country. Those who resort to force will justify their tactics by the same arguments advanced by the Columbia rebels and their apologists. If this national menace is to be checked, it is imperative that one know how to answer them.

1) Some rebels claim that none of their tactics involved the use of force. This was not the case. The single best answer to this argument is provided by Professor Leonard Peikoff in his forthcoming book, "Nazism and Contemporary America: The Ominous Parallels," who says: "The demand for amnesty on principle is the demand for the abdication on principle of legal authority; it is a demand for the formal sanction in advance of all future acts of force and violence, for the promise that such acts may be perpetrated hereafter with impunity. It is a demand to institutionalize the appeasement of brute force as a principle of civil policy in this country."

2) Other rebels admit that they used force, but claim that force is justified when peaceful tactics fail. The fundamental political principle that all men must resort to violence. They obliterate the distinction between criminals who initiate the use of force and the police whose function it is to retaliate with force to restore peace and to protect the rights of the victims.

To understand the grotesque irrationality of SDS' argument, consider the following. Imagine that there were a student chapter at Columbia of the Ku Klux Klan, which was protesting the proposed use of the new gym by Negroes. They tried, through campus rallies and petitions, to arouse the students, faculty and administration to support their demands, but their peaceful tactics failed. If this group then proceeded to seize university buildings and hold members of the administration as hostages, would anyone have condoned their use of force, or have called for negotiations and compromise? The principle is the same: the initiation of force to achieve one's political objectives is both immoral and illegal, regardless of nesty. The single best answer to this argument is provided by Professor Leonard Peikoff in his forthcoming book, "Nazism and Contemporary America: The Ominous Parallels," who says: "The demand for amnesty on principle is the demand for the abdication on principle of legal authority; it is a demand for the formal sanction in advance of all future acts of force and violence, for the promise that such acts may be perpetrated hereafter with impunity. It is a demand to institutionalize the appeasement of brute force as a principle of civil policy in this country."

3) The rebels claim that police represent violence, and therefore should not be used on a college campus which is a citadel of reason and persuasion. Here the rebels evade the fact that they were the ones who first resorted to violence. They obliterate the distinction between criminals who initiate the use of force and the police whose function it is to retaliate with force to restore peace and to protect the rights of the victims.

4) The rebels claim that their quarrel with the administration was purely an internal dispute, hence the introduction of police represents meddlesome interference by outsiders. By the same reasoning, one could just as well conclude that if workers seize a factory, customers seize a store, or tenants seize an apartment building, these, too, are internal matters and do not justify calling in the police. In reason there can be no such concept as an "internal dispute" which allows someone to be victimized and prevented from calling the police. Those who violate property rights are scarcely in a position to claim that their conquered territory is "private property" upon which police may not enter.

the police should not restrain rioting mobs from looting stores, or interfere with the KKK when it uses fire-bombs on Negro churches. On this principle, any victim of theft or expropriation would be advised to surrender his property—his wallet or warehouse—without resistance, lest the thief be hurt in the struggle. Acceptance of this principle would make every individual the defenseless target for any vandal or socialist.

The Columbia crisis vitally affects the life of every American. No one's life or property can be secure in a society which tolerates the use of force by any group to achieve its goals. And no one will be safe as long as college and civil authorities persist in their policy of answering aggression with appeasement.

Now is the time for intelligent counter-action. One means is to withhold financial support from colleges which condone or compromise with student terror tactics. A second is to write to the president and trustees of colleges urging that they endorse the following position: that their institution offers no sanctuary to any group which advocates the initiation of physical force, and that they will act immediately and without hesitation to expel and criminally prosecute any student guilty of such tactics.

Men need to live by the guidance of rational principles and to resolve their disagreements peacefully. It is both immoral and impractical to abandon principles in a time of crisis, and then hope to survive on the basis of pragmatic expediency and cowardly compromise. Each time that a violation of individual rights is tolerated, it serves as an invitation for future violations. A free society cannot survive unless men of reason rally to its defense.

Late this afternoon Assistant Attorney General (AAG) Robert C. Mardian called and requested a discussion with personnel handling the Eastcon case concerning the Department's intention of beginning an investigatory Grand Jury in Philadelphia on 5/26/71 concerning several draft board cases and the burglary of the Media Resident Agency.

SA George H. Menzel and I met with AAG Mardian, Deputy AAG Kevin Maroney and Department Attorney [redacted] Mardian stated Department Attorney [redacted] intended to convene a Grand Jury at Philadelphia to look into several draft board break-ins in that area in hopes of ultimately developing witnesses who could lead to the solution of the burglary of the Media Resident Agency as there were no subjects developed to date. Mardian stated that one of the break-ins involved was the 2/7/70 break-in of the draft board at Philadelphia which was the basis of the overt acts charged in the superseding indictment in captioned matter returned 4/30/71 at Harrisburg. Mardian explained that the indictment in captioned matter dealt with conspiracy charges and any indictments returned from the Grand Jury proposed for Philadelphia would be on the substantive violation itself.

AAG Mardian commented while it was proper from a legal viewpoint to possibly have two different groups of persons indicted as a result of a draft board break-in, one group on conspiracy and another group on a substantive violation, he was concerned as to whether the Grand Jury action in Philadelphia might in any way jeopardize prosecutive action in the Eastcon case. Mardian was advised that the Bureau felt this matter had to be resolved by the Department and it was strongly suggested that any action contemplated by Department Attorney [redacted] at Philadelphia should be cleared through [redacted]

Mardian at that time indicated to Goodwin that he could proceed at Philadelphia; however, any indictment contemplated would have to be cleared through [redacted] prior to being

May 16, 1971, edition of "The Washington Post" contained article (attached) captioned "Informant Tagged in FBI Papers." Article stated that based on information contained in copies of seven FBI documents stolen from Media Resident Agency and recently received by the "Post," a prominent Philadelphia civil rights leader has been identified as a Bureau informant. "Post" article did not identify informant by name nor did it report sufficient identifying data regarding alleged Bureau documents to enable us to identify them from Bureau files. Director noted on the article: "What about this? H."

Philadelphia Office advised 5/17/71 that weekend Philadelphia newspapers carried article similar to that appearing in "Post" which identified informant as [redacted]. Philadelphia further advised that cooperative newspaper source volunteered to Philadelphia copies of FBI documents on which Philadelphia news article and apparently the article in the "Post" was based. Copies of these documents are en route to the Bureau by special courier. Philadelphia stated that [redacted] was never an informant but had been contacted periodically until mid-1970 regarding racial and criminal matters. In mid-1970, [redacted] made a remark which appeared in the Philadelphia press critical of the Bureau. The Director instructed and Philadelphia was advised that they should have no further contact with [redacted].

On the afternoon of 5/17/71, SAC Philadelphia advised that Philadelphia press on 5/17 carried results of interview with [redacted] wherein he denied he was FBI informant and again made derogatory statements regarding Bureau and Director.

ACTION:

Upon receipt of documents from Philadelphia which formed basis for "Post" article, this matter will be carefully analyzed and you will be promptly advised of the full facts.

'Informant' Tagged in FBI Papers

By Betty Medsger

Washington Post Staff Writer

A prominent Philadelphia civil rights leader has been an FBI informant for a number of years, according to a report from the thieves who stole documents from the Media, Pa. FBI office March 8.

The alleged informant has not been active in civil rights for about two years. One of his former associates told The Washington Post yesterday that the man in question recently told him, "I'm not on the civil rights kick anymore."

During the time he is said to have been an informant, the former civil rights leader did such contradictory things as praise violence, support conservative public officials, claim membership in militant black organizations and publicly chastise a civic leader for supporting black radicals.

Copies of seven FBI documents that mention the former civil rights leader, who was active in several moderate rights groups, were received yesterday by The Washington Post. They were sent from Detroit by the self-styled "Citizens Commission to Investigate the FBI," the group that has taken credit for the theft of Media files. They have sent copies of about 70 of the documents to several newspapers and others.

A May 1970 document which describes the man as a potential criminal informant indicates that he did not know a person the FBI asked him about.

The other six documents appear to be part of a file that may have contained more than 33 pages, because one of the sets received is numbered

In another document, a public official is reported as having told the FBI that the "potential for violence" in the community is contingent on whether the alleged informer is elected to public office and on whether he gains leadership in a particular civil rights organization.

The alleged informer provided the names of three organizations involved in civil rights activity to the FBI, according to another document. All the groups named are moderate. He also describes the "three objectives sought by racial leaders" as being "better housing, equal job opportunities and school desegregation."

The documents received by The Washington Post do not describe the extensive liaison between the alleged informer and the FBI that is described in a covering letter sent by the Citizens Commission.

But the documents sent to The Washington Post apparently do not include all the ones stolen that pertain to the alleged informer.

In its covering letter, the Citizens Commission said documents on the alleged informer outline a bizarre story of a double agent who maintained a close friendly contact with his public enemies, gathered information for the FBI, reported on his friends and fellow militants and freely shared his plans for achieving personal control of black movements with the FBI agents.

More than any other revelation of the Citizens Commission, said the covering letter, the files on this alleged informer indicate the efforts of the FBI to infiltrate black movements and foster leadership that could be clandestinely managed by governmental investigatory agencies.

All the documents received by The Post were reproductions made on a copying machine. However, the Citizens Commission covering letters said that they had included some "originals" or actual papers taken from the FBI files. The mailed packet as received in The Washington Post newsroom did not contain "originals."

FBI raids Powelton!

LAST NIGHT OVER A DOZEN FBI AGENTS SMASHED DOWN THE DOOR OF ANNE FLITCRAFT'S POWELTON VILLAGE APARTMENT IN A RAID PURPORTEDLY AIMED AT SEIZING FILES STOLEN FROM THE FBI'S OFFICE IN MEDIA, PA. THEY FOUND AND TOOK THIRD-GENERATION XEROX COPIES OF SOME OF THE MEDIA DOCUMENTS, WHICH, AS THE FBI SURELY KNOWS, CAN BE FOUND IN LITERALLY HUNDREDS OF OFFICES AND HOMES ACROSS THE COUNTRY, INCLUDING THE OFFICES OF ALL MAJOR DAILY NEWSPAPERS. THEY CONFISCATED A TYPEWRITER, BOOKS, PRIVATE NOTES, NEWSPAPERS, A STAPLER AND OTHER PERSONAL POSSESSIONS — NONE OF WHICH WERE MENTIONED IN THE SEARCH WARRANT. THEY DID NOT SEEM TO BE SEARCHING FOR EVIDENCE TO BE USED IN COURT. THEY DID NOT ARREST ANNE FLITCRAFT. THEIR REAL PURPOSE WAS BEST STATED IN ONE OF THE LIBERATED MEDIA DOCUMENTS: TO "ENHANCE THE PARANOIA ENDEMIC IN (NEW LEFT) CIRCLES."

HOWEVER, THIS ATTEMPT AT POLITICAL REPRESSION IS FAILING. WHILE THE RAID WAS IN PROGRESS, POWELTON RESIDENTS GATHERED OUTSIDE THE APARTMENT IN A DEMONSTRATION OF UNITY AND PROTEST AGAINST THE FBI'S OUTRAGEOUS AND VIOLENT ACTIONS. LAST FRIDAY COMMUNITY MEMBERS CONFRONTED THE FBI HERE AT THE PHILADELPHIA HEADQUARTERS AND DEMANDED AN END TO HARRASSMENT AND SURVEILLANCE.

IN LIGHT OF LAST NIGHT'S INTOLERABLE ATTEMPT TO IMPEDE THOSE ACTIVELY WORKING FOR PEACE AND SOCIAL JUSTICE, WE RETURN TO FBI HEADQUARTERS TODAY TO PRESENT OUR DEMANDS:

- 1) That the FBI get out of our communities — this means that all agents, informers and infiltrators must leave Powelton, and that all wire-tapping, following, surveillance and harrassment must end;
- 2) A full public accounting to the community, and assurances that these events will not be repeated;
- 3) An end to all politically motivated harrassment;
- 4) The destruction of all intelligence files and tapes which have been accumulated;
- 5) The immediate return of all personal belongings taken from Anne Flitcraft in the May 16 raid.

The Director circulated an editorial, "What Is The FBI Up To," from the "Washington Post" March 25, 1971, and a news story from the same newspaper on March 24, 1971. He said "Attached is what I want to be looked into. Find out where & by whom such 'agents provocateur' activities were ordered. H."

WASHINGTON, D.C.

My review of this material shows three references in the "Washington Post" to allegedly official FBI documents. These are as follows quoted from the news story in the March 24, 1971, issue:

1. "One of the documents encourages agents to step up interviews with dissenters 'for plenty of reasons, chief of which are it will enhance the paranoia endemic in these circles and will further serve to get the point across there is an FBI agent behind every mailbox."

"In addition," continues the Sept. 16, 1970, document, 'some will be overcome by the overwhelming personalities of the contacting agent and volunteer to tell all - perhaps on a continuing basis."

2. "In the FBI document dated Sept. 16, 1970, an apparent reference is made to student agents:

"The Director has okayed PSI's and SI's age to 18 to 21. We have been blocked off from this critical age group in the past. Let us take advantage of this opportunity."

Memorandum to Mr. Tolson

"Last night, Justice Department officials denied that SI stands for 'Student Informer' or that PSI stands for 'Paid Student Informer,' but they refused to disclose what the initials mean.

"The same document states, 'In payments to informants, if the total of services and expenses to an informant is less than $300 in a lump sum payment or per month, our request for such payment is handled within division 5. If the lump sum payment or monthly authorization is $300 or more, it must be approached on a much higher level.

"Note: If an informant is to travel outside our division and we initially go in and request expense payment of less than $300, it can be handled simply while the services payment can be requested later based on what he has produced."

3. "One of the stolen documents indicates that black student groups on campuses were to be under surveillance by the FBI. The Nov. 4, 1970, memorandum, issued by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, said in part.

"Increased campus disorders involving black students pose a definite threat to the Nation's stability and security and indicate need for increase in both quality and quantity of intelligence information on . . . (such) groups which are targets for influence and control by violence-prone Black Panther Party (BPP) and other extremists."

The "agente provocateur" instructions to which the Director referred are contained in numbered items 1 and 2 above, referred to in the "Washington Post" as an "FBI document." It is not an official FBI document. It is an informal memorandum entitled "New Left Notes - Philadelphia, 9/16/70, Edition #1," a copy of which was found by the burglars in the Media, Pennsylvania, Resident Agency. The copy bears the name [redacted] rather obviously referring to SA [redacted] who was in the Media Resident Agency. A Photostat copy is enclosed as attached Exhibit #1, and a retyped copy for better legibility is attached as Exhibit #2. b6

The "agente provocateur" document described immediately above speaks of enhancing the "paranoia" endemic in New Left circles and makes reference to getting across the point that "there is an FBI agent behind every mailbox."

Memorandum to Mr. Tolson

b7C

My telephonic inquiry of SAC Jamieson in Philadelphia on 3/25/71, produced the answer that the referenced document was written by SA [redacted] the supervisor of Squad #4 (Applicant and Security matters) in the Philadelphia office. [redacted] is a veteran who entered on duty [redacted] and is now in Grade GS-14, 1970 Annual Performance Rating "Excellent." [redacted] as of 3/25/71, was upstate Pennsylvania conducting an important interview on EASTCON and is due back in Philadelphia at noon on Friday, 3/26/71. SAC Jamieson said [redacted] would submit his explanations today 3/26/71. ✓

we will see what he has to say

SA [redacted] reference, in numbered paragraph 2 above, to the Director having OK'd Potential Security Informants and Security Informants in age 18 to 21 apparently is based on SAC Letter 70-48 (C) dated 9/15/70 which, in turn, is based on a September 2, 1970, memorandum from Mr. Felt to Mr. Tolson re, "Security Informants, Racial Informants," both attached. These two documents gave official Bureau approval for developing informants in the 18 to 21 year group. In the Felt to Tolson memorandum, the Director said "OK but I want any between 18 & 21 yrs. to be approved by Soyars also. H." Numbered item 3 above does refer to an official FBI document. This is the attached airtel from the Director to SAC, Albany, and other SACs dated November 4, 1970, re "Black Student Groups on College Campuses, Racial Matters." Also attached are the yellow file copy of that airtel and the memorandum of November 3, 1970, from Mr. Moore to Mr. Brennan, same caption, on which approval was granted. ✓

RECOMMENDATION:

That Administrative Division prepare a separate memorandum concerning administrative action to be taken against SA Anderson on receipt of Anderson's explanation. ✓

This newsletter will be produced at irregular intervals as needed to keep those persons dealing with New Left problems up to date in an informal way. It is not a serial and is considered an informal routing slip. It should be given the security afforded a Bureau serial, classified confidential, but may be destroyed when original purpose is served. ✓

The New Left conference at SOG 9/10-11/70 produced some comments: ✓

In disseminating reports recommending for the SI it is preferable to designate and disseminate to Secret Service immediately and put the FD-376 (the buck slip to Secret Service) on the second Bureau copy. ✓

There was a pretty general consensus that more interviews with these subjects and hangers-on are in order for plenty of reasons, chief of which are it will enhance the paranoia endemic in these circles and will further serve to put the point across there is an FBI Agent behind every mailbox. In addition, some will be overcome by the overwhelming personalities of the contacting agent and volunteer to tell all - perhaps on a continuing basis. The Director has okayed PSI's and SI's age 18 to 21. We have been blocked off from this critical age group in the past. Let us take advantage of this opportunity. ✓

A review of Philadelphia file 100-48677, entitled "A QUAKER ACTION GROUP (AQAG); IS - MISCELLANEOUS," shows that Philadelphia serials 448, Alexandria teletype to the Bureau and Washington Field dated 7/17/69; 460, Alexandria letterhead memorandum dated 8/5/69; and 461, Alexandria airtel to the Bureau dated 8/5/69, were charged out 11/19/70 to the Media, Pa., Resident Agency, are missing, and are presumed to have been stolen in the captioned burglary. Copies of these serials were furnished to Philadelphia by the Alexandria Division, Alexandria file number 100-71.

Alexandria is requested to furnish one clear and readable copy of each of the three above-described serials to Philadelphia in order that Philadelphia might compare the contents of same with information contained in newspaper releases. It is suspected that the contents of one or all three of these serials have been published, at least in part, by various newspapers.

If it is determined that the three serials are definitely among those stolen, six copies of each will be duplicated and forwarded to the Bureau along with appropriate amended pages for the stolen list.
